JUSTICE DALY LAUGHING.

SURGEON-GENERAL HAMMOND ON TRAIN'S INSANITY.

George Francis Train on Surgeon-General Hammond's Corpulency-The Peculiarity of Mr. Train's Four Lawyers' Style of Entering Objections.

Just before 4 yesterday afternoon Maj. Gen. D. Weymss Jobson entered Chief Justice Daly's court room and seated himself in a chair near the one which his Honor occupies. The spectators gazed in wonderment at the General, and a sprightly little black moustached court officer gently assisted him from the bench. Gen. Jobson then seated himself at the table used by officer was again on his heels, and the General was forced to take a back seat. Although sub-James E. Maxwell, E. H. Chapin, Henry C. private secretary, entered at precisely 4 o'clock. Mr. Train wore in his lappel a beautiful red rose, one of a barge number sent to him by a lady of Boston. Justice Daly arrived a few moments afterward. Then Assistant District Attorney Lyon and a file of physicians seated themselves near the bench, and the curtain was drawn up. Mr. Train removed his brown kid gloves, and taking same memorandum paper from his pocket, began to jot down some points for his counsel. The jurymen, all of them reading THE SUN, emmed and looked at the Assistant District Attorney, who told Justice Daly that Mr. Phelips had been too much exhausted by his day's labors to appear.

Surgeon-General William A. Hammond was called to the witness stand. The General's remarkable resemblance to William M. Tweed excited comment, and some of those in the rear who did not know him said:

"WHY, THERE'S TWEED, NOW." Mr. Train wore in his lappel a beautiful red rose, oppressive. The teeming millions must find homes outside of New York, and as near to the business centres as possible. Thousands have already sought homes in New Jersey; other thousands have gone into Westchester county, and as many more have flowed into Long Island. Queens county is receiving yearly a large proportion of this emigration. Although communication with the remote parts of the county is more difficult than with the attractive places in Kings county, the cheapness of land and building sites in Queens attracts a steady flow. It peeds but a cheap, rapid, and safe transit across the East river to increase this emigration.

This transit is to be completed within the next five years. The means is the New York and Long Island Bridge. The following certificate, dated Jinne [9, 1872, will throw some light upon the subject:

Mr. Bell asked him whether Mr. Train did not inquire about his (the witness) health, and whether the prisoner did not tell him that he had picthora abdominatis, and that he weighed twenty pounds too much. Dr. Hammond burst into a fit of laughter, and replied that he did not remember.

DR. TRAIN PRESCRIBING FOR MR. HAMMOND.

The witness was then asked whether Mr. Train did not advise him to take Turkish baths. The Surgeon-General rocked in his chair and held his sides. Mr. Train looked earnestly at him, and the witness replied in the affirmative. Dr. Hammond then said that Mr. Train's temperament was about the same as that of Charles XII. of Sweden, and the prisoner seemed pleased. Here one of the jurors retired from the room, and the witness called for a glass of water, which he slowly sipped during a low conversation with Mr. Allen. The witness then rested until the juryman's return, seemingly willing to remain in the witness box a week if necessary. Then the examination was resomed, and the witness described more fully his taik with Mr. Train, and again spoke of the prisoner's good qualities and his friendship for him. A copy of the Toledo Nun, containing a two-column account of the Surgeon-General's visit to Mr. Train in the Tombs, was produced. DR. TRAIN PRESCRIBING FOR MR. HAMMOND.

The prisoner's four lawyers arose and asked to have it read. Justice Daly had no objection, but on the contrary seemed anxious to hear it. Mr. Lyon made a feeble objection, but seeing that the jourymen desired to listen to it, withdrew his objection, and Justice Daly leaned back in his chair and prepared for fun. The spectators in the rear crowded forward, and all bont their eyes upon the Strzeon-General, who held the newspaper carelessly in his hand. A pin could have been heard to dreat, Dr. Hammoned gazed about him and smiled, and Mr. Train thrust his lead pencil over his left car. Then the witness began to read, but before he had read four lines the court was in an uppost. Again and again did the court officer try to check the laughter during the reading of the article, but each time failed. Even Justice Daly could not control himself, and the prisoner was in great give. At the allusions to himself and Warden Johnson the witness shook with laughter. When he read that portion of the article concerning Mr. Train's request to warden Johnson, that the committee of Aldermen who were examining into the condition of the Tombs should be locked up in a damp cell for two hours before being permitted to make their report, there was much merriment, and when he read that Mr. Train breakfasted at ten on cocoa and ham and dined at four on achievables and postatoes it was several moments before the spectators could be quited.

A Pleasant Voyage on the Atlantic. To the Educr of the Sun.
Sin: The Canada sailed from Liverpool on the 19th of March, and arrived in New York on the 3d of April. On the 25th we encountered a terrific gale, which left us so disabled that but for the confidence felt in the ability of the captain and the seaworthiness of the ship it would have been impossible to keep any order among either the passengers or crow. The Canada is among either the passengers or crew. The Canada is of 4.27. tounage, 391 feet in length, and 41 feet in her breadth of beam. She is one of the latest built vessels of the National Line. I will finish by stating that no steerage passengers could be better treated than we were. The meat was excellent, well cooked, and plenty of it; the bread baked every morning, as good as I evertasted on land; the soup and fish supplied I never heard a single objection to. The civility of the stewards and the courtesy of the officers could not be surpassed. In deed, from the lowest servant of the company to the highest officer of the company to the highest officer of the non-motive was common to all, that of making the passengers as comfortable as possible, and their stay while on board as pleasant as they could make it. The steerages were comfortable and clean, the quantity of fresh water was unlimited and clean, the quantity of fresh water was unlimited and the liberty allowed us was unbounded. This is the third time I have crossed the Atlantic.

AN AGED SOLDIER'S STORY.

The Autobiography of an Applicant for Shel-ter In the Oak Street Police Station-A Genuine Veteran of 1812.

On Sunday morning an old man entered the Oak street police station and asked the sergeant to shelter him until Monday. Impressed with the man's good address, and seeing at a glance that such a person would not have applied at a police station had he not been driven by want, the sergeant complied. He was sent into the prison corridor, near the stove, and made as comfortable as possible there. The old man told the story of his checkered life as fol-

I was wounded. This battle was stubbornly contested on both sides. The British artillery was three times taken at the point of the bayonet, and as many times retaken. In the last charge, in which I was slightly wounded, the Americans retook the cannons, and successfully held them against several assaults. Here it was that the brave Gen. Pike was killed by the blowing up of a powder magazine by the British. I was only a short distance from the General when he was killed. Col. Mills was also killed in the engagement. Scott, with orders to be always near him. I saw two horses killed under the General in one of those trying moments when it became necessary to carry a certain position. The General was twice wounded, one shot passing through his left shoulder. I was struck by a spent ball and was slightly wounded. The war soon closed and I returned to my farm.

About 1834 Canada was politically agitated by a strong opposition to the then Tory Government. Among the prominent opposition leaders were Louis Joseph Papineaw. McKenzie, and others. The opposition party favored rebellion, but were dissuaded by the prominent leaders, including those mentioned. The crisis came on the 2st of October, 1837, when a meeting of the epposition was held and the famous "appeal to the people" was sent out as the opinion of the Whigs.

What aided zest to the great excitement was

The opposition took advantage of the time and sent emissaries to the States to foster the hostile feeling against England and secrelly to recruit men for their service. I was among the party that attempted to retake the steamer. Being unsuccessful in this endeavor I joined a force which Romance on Kettle River-True Leve Rewarded at Last.

A young man named Henry Bretlandt, aged 22, who had been an employee somewhere along the line of the N. P., met at St. Paul, last summer. Susie P. Englefreit, a girl of 15, a daughter of a German settler living near Kettle river, and an intimacy sprung up between them. They corresponded for a while, but one of Henry's letters happening to fall into the hands of Susie's brother. Wilhelm, there was a big explosion on the part of her father and mother, who in strong language denounced the cunning lover, and informed her that the thing must be stopped at once. And, as they thought, it was.

A few months ago, however, Susie was missed from the breakfast table, and on searching her room it was ascertained that she had not been in her bed, and that her wardrobe had gone with her.

There was no real alarm in the family, and the brother was sent to look for the lost girl. He wandered about for a number of days without finding his missing sister, nor was she heard from until a few weeks ago, when a lumberman informed the family there was a young couple living in a newly-built log cabin on Kettle river, some five or six miles above its entrance into the St. Croix. From this lumberman's description of the pair the family were satisfied it was Susie and her lover, and the father and brother resolved to pay them a visit. This they did the next day, and were surprised to find the runaways living comfortably, but occupying separate rooms. The caoin, though small, was divided into two apartments and furnished comfortably.

should take place the following Sunday at Susie's home.

In conversing with the forgiven lover, old Mr. Englefreit ascertained that Susie, after the discovery of their secret correspondence, had managed to get a letter to her intended, who, having previously selected a quarter section of land, went to work and put up his cabin and furnished it. When all was ready he went for Susie, and she being apprised that the minister to unite them was to be on hand at their future home in the wilds, jumped aboard a temporary sled Henry had provided, and was drawn by him some eight miles to their forest residence. On arriving there, the minister not being on hand, she wept bitterly and wanted to go back, but Henry assuaged her grief and proposed the separate room business, to which she acceded.

The pair were duly married at the residence of the girl's parests on the following Sunday, and now they as well as their connexions are happy.

Yesterday afternoon, in the Aldermen's room in the City Hall, Coroner Kessler investigated the case of Mrs. Mary Thomas, who before her death said that she was turned out of the Girls' Lodging House, 27 St. Mark's place, on the night of March 17, by the Matron of that institution, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Hurley. At the appointed hour Mrs. Hurley entered the room with Mr. Charles E. Whitehead, a director of the Chil-I joined a militia regiment then recruiting, and went with it to the Canadian border. TURNED OUT OF THE HOUSE,

No.27 St. Mark's place, because she was about to be confined, and complained bitterly that her own sex had done it. She said that had it not been for Officer Ross, who found her, she would have been compelled to lie in the street.

Officer Judge, the next witness, had never seen Mrs. Thomas, and all he knew of the case was that he went to the Girls' Lodging House and got the luggage belonging to Mrs. Thomas.

Officer Henry A. Ross testified that he saw Mrs. Thomas near lo'clock on the morning of March Is, and she asked him where the Second avenue cars were. She told him she had been put out of 27 St. Mark's place, because she was about to be confined. Such was her suffering, she could hardly talk, and he took her to the police station at First avenue and Fifth street.

Dr. A. W. McClay testified that he found Mrs. Thomas in the Fifth street police station in the last stage of labor. She was suffering great pain, and in fifteen minutes after her arrival at the police station she gave birth to a child. He said her labor was hastened by being turned out of the house. A woman in that condition turned out into the street would be apt to take cold and impair her health. It was very injurious to move her at all. It is dangerous to move any woman in such a condition.

THE MATRON'S TESTIMONY.

Mrs. Elizabeth S. Hurley, the next witness, testified that she was matron of the Girls' Lodging House, 27 St. Mark's blace. She said the kindness of her heart would have prevented her from letting Mrs. Thomas go, but that Mrs. Thomas insisted upon going, and then she offered to send one of the girls with her, but Mrs. Thomas insisted upon going alone. She had not seen her since. She did not call at Bellevue Hospital to see Mrs. Thomas. She said that Mrs. Thomas was not forced to go, but went voluntarily; and in reply to a ouestion by a jurce, Nirs. Hurley said she did not know that it was foily for Mrs. Thomas to go out of the house in such a condition at midnight. She did not know that Mrs. Thomas was so ill, and did not know she was about to be confined until she was so informed by another woman.

Mr. Charles E. Whitehead testified that he was a direct of the Children's Aid Society; that he knew nothing of the circumstances of this case. The lodging house is kept for young girls, and none are admitted above the age of eighteen. If others get in above that age, they are told to go elsewhere. None regret this accident (alluding to the death of Mrs. Thomas) more than the Children's Aid Society. He believed the mattron's story. Terrence Riley, roundsman of the Fifth street police, testified that on the morning of the 5th of January he found in a back room at 414 East Eleventh street the body of Maria Shefflin nude, bloody, and cold in death.

Ferdinand Stimishern who keeps a lazer beer saloon in the front building, testified that Shefflin entered his saloon about I o'clock in the morning and told him that he had come to the house to see his father, and learned that the latter had been sent to a hospital. Shefflin added that while he was talking with his mother and sister about the father a man came out of the bedroom where his wife, but feared that he had gone too far. Witness added that Willess added that Willess added that Willess added that Mrs Shefflin frequently drank liquor to excess.

but feared that he had gone too far. Witness added that Mrs Shefflin frequently drank liquor to excess.

James T. Bennett of the detective police testified that he arcested Shefflin, and that on the way to the police station he said to prisoner. "George, this seems to be a pretty bad scrape. How did you get into it?" Shefflin answered that he had been to a meeting at Twenty-third street and Third avenue, and had been drinking with some friends, and being near his father's residence went to see ihm, and that finding his wife with another man he local her, and he guessed he had "done more than he ought to, but he complained that his wife was a very bad woman, and had given him much trouble.

Dr. Simeon Leo deposed that the left eye of the corpse was contused, and had a cut over it. There was also a cut over the left angle of the mouth, the left arm and knuckles were bruised, and on the left hip there were several excoriations. The scalp was almost entirely torn off, and was hanging on the back part of the head. He did not believe a fall on the edge of the stove could have scalped her. Kicking might have done it, but he inclined to the opinion that it was done with a sharp Instrument. The court adjourned until this morning.

until after I o'clock without any special feature otherwise than an apprehensive feeling lest some calamity might visit the street and thus interfere with current speculation. The failure of Barton & Allen, who were prominently identified with strong connections, supplied the required fuel to the flame, and about 2 P. M. the stock market began to tumble, with prices breaking from 3 to 7 $\pi$ cent. There was not, however, any development of a special panieky feeling such as heretofore observed in periods of general distrust, and the break to-day had been partially discounted by those who realized that holders of stocks could not continue to pay 1/2. partially discounted by those who realized that holders of stocks could not continue to pay Manager and Manager an ence, and a wan and weary girl, an immate of the Girls' Lodging House. Coroner Kessler noted the fact that all the witnesses subprenaed were present except the physicians from Bellevue Hospital, who he said had manifested a reluctance to testify in this case.

The first witness, Mr. Charles Snyder, a Sergeant of the Fifth street police station, said that of the morning of the 18th of March, hear I o clock, he entered the police station and found Mary Thomas lying on the floor. She was in distress, and said, "For God's sake have some one do something for me." her moans and cries were so affecting that the Segmant, sitting at the close of business a report that money was offered in the street at 6. 9° cent, and scale in the natural reaction after feeling, and assisted in the natural reaction after with the sudden falt.
